About the BLHA: The association was formed in September 1990 to encourage and promote the study, teaching, the research and the publication of labour history as well as the preservation of labour archives. There are no limits to the study of labour history and the diverse membership reflects the many different areas of concern. Membership is open to all individuals and organisations who subscribe to the objectives of the association.

BLHA is the Brisbane branch of the Australian Society for the Study of Labour History (ASSLH)
